

Letter to the Editor

Pak J Ophthalmol 2013, Vol. 29 No. 4

Dr. Daljit Singh (Amritsar)
daljits1@gmail.com

I have been working on the fluid movement in the anterior segment through lymphatics. The standard teaching is that there are no lymphatics in the eye. I wish to start my association with PJO by attaching a self explanatory picture of the limbus showing lymphatics. If the ophthalmologists start looking at the limbus under high power of slit lamp microscope, they shall get a gold mine of information on lymphatics. Once you understand their importance, you shall not like to hurt them during any surgery especially during glaucoma surgery.

During my recent visit to Pakistan, i had an opportunity to go to Fauji hospital in Rawalpindi and Mughal hospital in Lahore. We do not have a single charitable hospital of such grandeur in our Punjab, in public or private sector. There must be many others too, which I have not seen. I saw the surgeons perform in excellent operation theater environment, which is superior to ours.

My congratulations to Pakistani ophthalmologists who made that possible.

Reply:

It is interesting to know that you are working on fluid movements in the anterior segment through lymphatics. We would suggest you to publish your article in PJO. So that our readers become aware of your research.

We appreciate your interest and for your views for Pakistani hospitals and doctors.

Prof. Shahid Wahab
Editor in Chief (Advisor)

Pakistan Journal of Ophthalmology aims to improve quality and standard of the journal to promote research in the field of Ophthalmology and in this regard PJO invites our valuable readers to submit Letter to Editor with their ideas, suggestions and positive scientific criticism with reference not more than 300 words long for possible publication. Pakistan Journal of Ophthalmology reserves the right to edit letters and may publish them in upcoming issues in print and electronic media (website). Submission of a letter implies consent for publication unless otherwise indicated in the letter. All letters must include the correspondent's name and address and are subject to editing to meet style, clarity, and space requirements.

We shall highly appreciate if letters may be sent to pjoosp@gmail.com. Please include "Letter to Editor" in the subject line and address your typed letter to: Editor, OSP House, 4 - A LDA Flats Lawrence Road, Lahore - Pakistan. Please include your name and address.
